TOWN AMATEURS GIVE GOOD SHOW

Large House Delighted with Two Plays and Musical Program Produced in Walter's Theatre by Local Talent.

Before a house in which practically every seat was taken Gettysburg's amateur players delighted their audience Thursday evening with their latest productions, "The Open Gate," "Surprises" and a new musical program.

As in "The Toastmaster," given earlier in the season, the local young people displayed remarkable ability and training and the frequent applause from the large audience showed how well their work was appreciated.

"The Open Gate," a pretty little domestic drama was given by Miss Louise Stable, Miss Frances McClean, Mr. Frank Carroll and Mr. Jay Wellington, all of whom acquitted themselves to the entire satisfaction of the audience. The stage was prettily arranged and the interpretation of the various parts was most satisfactory.

The musical program followed and the house fairly "broke loose" over several of the numbers. The chorus was prettily costumed and entered into the "steps" with the apparent ease of professional chorus girls and men. The house could not get enough of "Put on Your Old Grey Bonnet," "I've Got Rings on My Fingers," "E-Yip-I-Addy" and "Has Anybody here Seen Kelly?" The grey bonnets, the red dresses and tambourines, the singing school, and the costumes in the Kelly song made decided hits and applause, long and loud, followed each chorus. Mrs. Roy Zinn, and Mr. Carroll and Mr. Humphries in costume were popular with the audience in their respective parts. The solos by Mr. Wellington, Miss Ruth Clutz and Mr. Carroll also received well merited applause.

The final number of the musical program, "By the Light of the Silvery Moon," deserves special mention. The stage effects were most beautiful throughout and the singing of Miss Clutz and the chorus made it one of the best features of the evening.

"Surprises," a laughable comedy, well given, closed the evening's entertainment. Those in this cast were Miss Nellie R. Weaver, Miss Elizabeth Van Cleave, Mrs. Roy Zinn, Mr. Mark Eckert and Mr. Wellington.

In addition to those in the plays the following composed the chorus: Misses Elizabeth Cox, Blanche Klinger, Margaret Valentine, Mary Slaybaugh, Ruth Clutz, Martha Dickson, Helen Kenderhart, Messrs. Herbert Humphries, Henry H. Mercer, Edward Sincell, Samuel I. Bloomhardt, Master Roy Hartdgen, Mrs. Bessie Timmons was the accompanist.

The attraction will be repeated to-night and should be greeted by another crowded house.

The bride and groom were unattended. William Troxell, Jr., of Hanover street, played the wedding march and the ceremony was performed by Rev. Daniel E. Weigle, of Mechanicsburg, a classmate of the groom, assisted by Rev. L. Dow Ott, pastor of the Methodist church.

The wedding took place in the parlor of the Sheads home which was prettily decorated with potted plants and cut flowers. Only the immediate families and a few friends were present.

The bride received a large number of handsome presents of china, cut glass, silverware and linen. She is a graduate of the Gettysburg High School in 1901 while Rev. Mr. Fleck is a graduate of both College and Seminary, having graduated from the latter institution within the past few weeks.

ANOTHER GEORGE PARKER CAUGHT

George S. Parker, who is Accused of Passing Worthless Checks in Philadelphia Caught in that City. Sounds Like George C.

George C. Parker, who defrauded local people and banks to the extent of several hundred dollars some weeks ago has not been captured but another George Parker has been reported killed in New York, a third wanted for forgery in Southern States and now comes a further story from Philadelphia. The description of George Parker in this last tale correspond exactly with that of the fake student except in the matter of height, the latter having been only about 5 feet 9 inches. The following is from the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin:

George S. Parker, six feet two inches tall, who has been sought by the West Philadelphia police for more than two months as the supposed signer of worthless checks aggregating thousands of dollars in face value, was recognized and captured through his unusual height and stylish attire.

A policeman caught him after chasing him through the home of his sister-in-law and he is now awaiting a hearing when about thirty persons are expected to appear against him.

Business men and shop keepers have been complaining to the police in regard to worthless checks given them in return for purchases or which they have cashed at the request of a saucy prosperous looking stranger. He was described as being unusually tall wearing a fashionable suit, light in color, and a Panama hat. Roseboro, a policeman of the 39th street and Lancaster avenue station, was walking on the 39th street just north of Market, in the afternoon when he saw a man like the one wanted on a door step. Without hesitation he hurried toward him, but the man quickly entered and tried to close the door. Roseboro was too quick for him, however, and forced his way into the hall.

Parker fled toward the rear of the house with the policeman at his heels. Out through the kitchen and into the yard ran the tall fugitive, and just as he was leaping through the back gate Roseboro grabbed his coat tail and hung on. Parker vainly tried to shake him off. He then stopped and surrendered. The house, he said, was the home of his sister in law.

Nearly all of the checks passed by Parker belonged to the West Philadelphia Title and Trust Company or the Hamilton Trust Company. It is supposed that the blank checks were taken from the tables in the companies' offices and filled out as suited Parker's fancy.

LEG BROKEN BY FALL

After crawling some distance on his hands and knees, he was assisted by friends to a trolley car and rode to Gettysburg. He took the first train for Hanover, arriving there in the evening, when his family physician was summoned who rendered the necessary surgical attention. Although suffering much pain, Mr. Cole is doing as well as could be expected.

Krebs, of Swarthmore, formerly of Littlestown, whose automobile ran down and killed 12 year old Thomas Casack, of Swarthmore, on Thursday afternoon, March 26, has been admitted to bail by Chief Deputy Coroner Sellers, to appear at the inquest. He is survived by his widow and two daughters.

FALLS VICTIM OF THE BLACK HAND

Shamokin Man Stabbed in Back on Street Corner.

Shamokin, Pa., June 1. — Henry Leichter, an American, was taking a walk for the benefit of his feeble condition, and stopped at a street crossing to converse with several friends, when Antonio Rizz, an alleged member of the Black Hand society, crept up from behind Leichter and plunged a stiletto into him, almost disemboweling the former, who fell to the street, while his assailant ran into his own home close by.

Men with guns surrounded the house to prevent him from escaping. Several state policemen broke into the place and after a desperate struggle captured and imprisoned him. Leichter was removed to a hospital, where his death is expected at any time. The reason for Rizz's assault is unknown.

GOLDEN RULE CHIEF FIGHTS

Kohler, Suspended Head of Cleveland Police, Faces Trial.

Cleveland, O., June 1.—What promises to be one of the most bitter and sensational trials ever held in this city was begun before the civil service commission when Frederick Kohler, suspended chief of police, appeared to answer charges which have been filed against him.

Kohler, who has a reputation as the "best chief" and is the originator of the golden rule in police matters, is accused of misconduct in office, intoxication and gross immorality. The charges were filed last Wednesday and he was suspended by Mayor Baehr Thursday.

Acting Chief of Police Schmunk has forbidden any members of the police department from spying upon Kohler or taking any part in the trial unless subpoenaed. Kohler filed with the civil service commission a general denial of the twenty-three charges against him.

TAKEN BACK TO SCHOOL

Hartford, Conn., June 1.—Edwin Gould, Jr., who tramped the highways of Connecticut and landed in the station house at New Britain as a guest, was taken back to Pomfret school by his father, none the worse for his experience except for blisters on his feet.

Young Gould departed merrily, saying he would be glad to get back to school. He added that he was homesick when he left school last Friday, but he thought he had gotten over it, and especially he felt better after seeing his father.

Another Black Hand Victim?

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., June 1.—Peter Savato, of Brodericks, near here, whose friends believe he has fallen a victim to the Black Hand organization there, has been missing since last Thursday, and the police have been asked to aid in the search for him. He had been threatened several times, his friends say, and on the night of May 26 he left his home on receipt of a message saying that a couple of men wanted to see him down the street.

A New Case of English Humor.

Two southerners were entertaining an Englishman when one of them told the following story:

"There was a poor white in our county named Yarrow, whom every one thought dishonest, but who had never been caught stealing. At last he got too bold, and through the testimony of a Mr. Brown he was sent to jail. Soon after Yarrow served his sentence Mr. Brown was obliged to go to Baltimore and have his eyes operated upon. A much exaggerated account of the op-

BANKER HELD AS SMUGGLER

Accused of Hiding Jewelry Valued at Over $4800.

RUSE UNCOVERS ATTEMPT

Inspector Bumped Into Accused and Found Two Necklaces Valued at $800 in His Hip Pocket—Wife Had a Brooch and Diamond Clasp.

New York, June 1.—Hiram R. Lyon, a banker of Minneapolis, who arrived by the Hamburg-American liner Amerika, was bumped into as he was about to leave the pier by plain clothes sleuth Tim Donahue, whose special is finding things concealed in the clothing of smugglers. There was something hard and large in the hip pocket of the banker, and when Donahue asked him what it was, he answered, according to Donahue, that it was his pocketbook, and Donahue asked him to take it out and show it. The banker then admitted that he had two pearl necklaces. He said he had bought them in Europe for $3800 as a gift for his wife and that he was willing to pay whatever duty there might be on them. Donahue took possession of the jewelry and made his discovery known to the deputy surveyor in charge of the customs men on the pier, and Mrs. Lyon, who had gone to the street and entered a car, was called back.

Mr. Lyon, according to Donahue, then remarked that his wife had a brooch valued at $500 and a diamond and emerald clasp worth about $500. Mrs. Lyon surrendered the articles, but nevertheless was searched by a woman inspector, who discovered nothing additional. The deputy surveyor seized all the seven trunks of the banker and his wife and they were sent to the public stores. The banker called at the custom house and said he had no desire to smuggle and was willing to pay whatever was necessary. The customs men, in telling their side of the case, said that they had given Mr. Lyon ample opportunity to declare everything that he had that was dutiable, and that he had put the valuable stuff at $504, adding later, at the request of the customs men, $45 for two suit cases bought abroad. Another search of the trunks followed the discovery of Donahue and a gold watch valued at about $100 was found. Mr. Smyth said he thought it was a proper case to submit to United States Commissioner Russ in Hoboken, and he ordered Donahue to take the banker to a prisoner.

No charge was made against Mrs. Lyon, but she decided to accompany her husband to Hoboken. After hearing the testimony the commissioner held Mr. Lyon in $2500 bail, which he furnished in cash. He was held for examination on June 8.

Mr. Lyon declared on the pier that he had eleven pieces of baggage, but as only ten were found, he was asked about the other. He said it had been sent ahead by the steamer Cincinnati, which arrived here about a month ago. It is a large trunk and has been since in the government stores. It will be carefully searched and its contents appraised, as the contents of the other trunks will be, so the exact value of everything of foreign make found in them will be presented at the examination of Mr. Lyon.

SHIVER OR SIZZLE

Northerners Benumbed With Cold; Southerners Enfeebled by Heat.

Washington, June 1.—With the mercury registering two degrees below the freezing point on the north shore of Lake Superior, the temperature at Yuma, Arizona, was 120 degrees Fahrenheit in the shade, government record. Commenting upon this wide range of temperature, Professor Harry Frankfort, official weather forecaster, said it could not be wondered at that weather forecasting was a difficult task.

Telegraphic reports told of a continuance of a hot wave in the west and no sign appeared of warm weather for the east.

Snow in Pittsburgh.

Pittsburgh, Pa., June 1.—Yesterday was the coldest May 31 in the annals of the local office of the United States weather bureau. A temperature of 39 degrees was recorded here at 10 o'clock. Snow fell between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning.

THE HOME WATER SUPPLY.

The healthfulness prevailing in any home depends in part upon the wholesomeness of the food consumed, but in much larger measure upon the water supply, the purity of which is largely affected by the proximity of contaminating causes, such as the seepage from the barnyards and cesspools. Where it is not feasible to install a toilet system with water tight drainage to a cesspool located at a safe distance from the water supply the most rational equipment for the outhouse is a substantial drawer made of two inch stuff, the contents of which can be killed by the addition of slaked lime from time to time and which can be hauled off and dumped as often as may be necessary. By such disposal of night soil the danger of a contamination of the water supply is reduced to a minimum. We realize that this is not a pleasant subject to discuss, but it is practical and vital and concerns chiefly those who are least able to foot heavy doctor's bills. Where a cesspool is already in bad shape conditions may be improved by dumping in half a barrel or so of quicklime, which will put a quickness on any disease germs which may be lurking there. It should then be cleaned out and filled up and a better system installed.

FOUGHT CATARRH FOR 20 YEARS

Here is a letter that we sincerely ask every reader of the Gettysburg Times to read. If you suffer from catarrh or any nose, throat or lung ailment, read it over twice, and then consider if you can afford to ignore a prescription with the calm virtue of Hyomei (pronounce it High-moy). Booth's Hyomei Co., Buffalo, N. Y.

Gentlemen—"I suffered terribly with catarrh in the head for twenty years, and I tried many prescriptions, but never found relief. I have used Hyomei for two weeks and find it the best preparation I have ever used for catarrh. Every cold I would catch seemed to go to my throat, and I had to use gargles for days at a time. Now when I catch a cold in the throat I use the Hyomei inhaler and this soreness disappears over night. Hyomei has put me on the good road to getting rid of my catarrh, and if you want to use this letter to publish in your advertising, do so. Perhaps it will help some other sufferer—W. K. ## MANY DEMOCRATS

Delmar, Del., June 1.—Edward Gorman, aged fifty-seven years, died suddenly in the drug store of Dr. Robert Eligood. Mr. Gorman was up early and, feeling badly, went to the medicine chest and, getting a bottle which he supposed contained castor oil, took a large swallow.

In a few minutes he discovered he had taken crude carbolic acid instead of the oil. He at once went to a physician and fell unconscious, dying about two hours later.

Mr. Gorman was a well known contractor and builder and had recently been building new stations for the New York, Philadelphia & Norfolk railway.

"We were going to see grandma," they explained, saying their grandmother lived in Goffstown, N. H. Neither seemed to realize the peril of the mode of travel they had chosen.

HITS BRITISH RULE IN EGYPT

Roosevelt Makes Sensational Speech in London.

HE POINTS OUT ERRORS

Says If England Is in Egypt by Right She Should Stay, If Not She Should Get Out.

London, June 1.—The freedom of the city of London was presented to Theodore Roosevelt, and he accepted the honor with a literalness that led him into a frankness of speech that created a sensation in old Guildhall.

The former president gave the motherland some bold advice as to her duty toward her most troublesome dependency in Africa.

It was, Mr. Roosevelt said, either right or not right for Great Britain to be in Egypt and establish order there. If it was not right she should get out.

He eulogized British rule in Uganda and the Sudan. He also declared that Great Britain had given Egypt the best government that country has had in 2000 years, but in certain vital points it had erred. Timidity and sentimentality, he said, might cause more harm than violence and injustice.

"Sentimentality," he asserted, "is the most broken reed upon which righteousness can lean."

Denounces Egyptian Nationalists.

Mr. Roosevelt denounced the Nationalist party of Egypt as neither desirous nor capable of guaranteeing primary justice. It was trying to bring murderous chaos upon the land.

Some nation, said the former president, must govern Egypt. He hoped and believed that the English would decide that the duty was theirs.

As a whole the speech was the most forcible expression on foreign topics the distinguished visitor has made during his European tour.

He dealt principally with the British policy in Egypt, which is today one of the most discussed of Great Britain's colonial questions.

His outspoken views sent a thrill through the one thousand auditors which is likely to be felt outside the walls of the ancient council hall.

Driven In Lord Mayor's Coach.

Mr. Roosevelt was driven in state from Ambassador Reid's home to the Guildhall, but the weather was not propitious and comparatively few persons witnessed the procession.

Rain fell throughout the forenoon, keeping most people indoors and only a few hundred persons were gathered in the vicinity of Dorchester house to witness the departure, or in King street when Mr. Roosevelt arrived at the hall.

He occupied the lord mayor's coach, and this was followed by the coaches of the sheriffs, who wore their uniforms of office.

The guests of the city government at Guildhall included many American and English business men besides officials of the city. The latter were in uniform and had seats on the platform to which Mr. Roosevelt was escorted.

Presentation of Parchment.

The parchment conveying the freedom of the city was contained in a beautiful gold casket. The presentation was made by Sir Joseph Cookfield Dimsdale, city chamberlain, who, extending his hand to the city's guest, spoke briefly. Sir Joseph dwelt particularly upon Great Britain's friendship toward the United States.

Following the exercises, Sir John Knill, lord mayor of London, entertained Mr. Roosevelt at a private luncheon, at which many prominent personages were present.

FIREBUG'S NEW SCHEME

Uses Chemical Compound That Water Makes More Inflammable.

Paterson, N. J., June 1.—Charged with having set fire to his store by means of a chemical compound, the nature of which has caused a sensation in police and fire circles, Eugene

Frank, twenty-three years old, was committed to the county jail by Recorder Carroll without bail. The latest freak of the phosphorus-like compound with which the contents of the store at 890 Main street were smeared has sent Fireman Martin J. O'Rourke to St. Joseph's hospital. O'Rourke was placed on guard at the store and when he picked up some of the compound it ignited in his hands. The hand was severely burned and O'Rourke may lose two of his fingers. The police regard the compound as the most dangerous yet devised for the purpose of arson, as the application of water only serves to make it more inflammable.

Justice Moody Won't Resign.
Boston, June 1.—A report that Justice Moody, of the supreme court of the United States, is to retire next October unless his condition improves, was denied in Boston. Justice Moody is still in the Corey Hill hospital in Brookline, where he has been for several months.

Philadelphia Disappointed.
Philadelphia, June 1.—Mr. Roosevelt declined by cable an invitation to speak in Independence Hall July 4.

The disk drill is generally recognized as the standard machine for sowing small grain. Not only does it mean economy in the use of seed, but it puts the grain at an even depth, covers all of it and thus insures a uniform germination and even stand, which means uniformity of growth and ripening. The end gate seeder a relic of a bygone era and should be relegated to the scrap pile.

Cracked Open, Bled, Burned and Ached for Over a Year—Could Not Sleep nor Even Dress Himself—Doctors Failed to Help Him.

MAN OF 70 OWES SKIN COMFORT TO CUTICURA

"From a man seventy years old, my hands were very sore and cracked open on the insides for over a year with large sores. They would crack open and bleed, itch, burn and ache so that I could not sleep and could do but little work. They were so bad that I could not dress myself in the morning. They would bleed and the blood dripped on the floor. I called on two doctors, but they did me no good. I could get nothing to do me any good till I got the Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. About a year ago my daughter got a cake of Cuticura Soap and one box of Cuticura Ointment and in one week from the time I began to use them my hands were all healed up and they have not been a sore since. I would not be without the Cuticura Remedies."

CHARLES D. NORTON.
It is Said He Will Be Appointed Secretary to the President.

MR. TAFT'S NEW SECRETARY

Rumor Says Appointment of Charles D. Norton, of Chicago, Is Certain.

Washington, June 1.—It is regarded here as practically certain that Charles D. Norton, of Chicago, assistant secretary of the treasury, will succeed Fred W. Carpenter as secretary to the president.

It is understood that the president has been assured that Mr. Norton stands ready to give his best services to the president in whatever capacity Mr. Taft may desire them.

President Taft is anxious to have as secretary a man who, in a way, will be an "assistant president." He has declared to his friends that he wants a man who will relieve him of all the minor details of the executive office, such as Mr. Loeb shared the arduous labors of Mr. Roosevelt.

CORPORATION TAX MUST BE REARGUED

Supreme Court Decides to Hear Case Again.

Washington, June 1.—It was decided by the supreme court that the corporation tax case, one of the important suits heard before Justice Brewer's death, shall be reargued.

More than $25,000,000 yearly revenue to the government will be involved in the decision.

It was thought a decision might be given before the summer adjournment, but now there can be no reargument before Governor Hughes goes on the bench in October. The date set is the beginning of the next term before a full bench.

The treasury department has been anxiously awaiting the corporation tax decision for several weeks. The monies that have been collected thus far under the law, something over $600,000, have been segregated by the treasury department pending the decision of the court.

Maxwell Evarts, of New York, brought the first suit to test the new law. It was an action in which the guardian of a ward living in Vermont sought to restrain a company running a store from the payment of tax. This was followed by several New York suits and some from Chicago.

They were argued together before the death of Justice Brewer, and immediately after the argument in the Standard Oil case, which has now gone over until next fall, under a request for reargument.

Meanwhile the treasury department has proceeded with preparations for the collection of the tax. Although it reaches only such corporations whose earnings exceed $5000 a year, the sum accruing from it will exceed $25,000,000.

President Taft, who urged the law as an amendment to the tariff act as a means of increasing revenue, is confident that it is constitutional. This view is shared by Attorney General Wickersham, who drafted it.

Girl, Trying to Rescue, Drowns.

Ashland, Ky., June 1.—In a vain effort to save the life of William Jackson, Miss Clara Simpson, a leader in Ashland society, was drowned. Miss Simpson saw Jackson fall into the river. ## MOVES AGAINST RATE INCREASE

Injunction Granted in Missouri Against Railroads.

LAFOLLETTE ACTS IN SENATE

Senator Brought Matter Up Before He Learned of President's Action—Suit to Be Brought in St. Louis.

Hannibal, Mo., June 1.—United States District Judge Dwyer granted an order restraining railroads, members of the Western Traffic association, from putting into effect a general increase in freight rates.

The petition, alleging an unlawful combination and conspiracy, was filed by Frederick N. Judson, special counsel, and Edwin P. Grosvenor, special assistant to Attorney General Wickersham.

Suit Ordered After Conference.

Washington, June 1.—At a conference between the president and Attorney General Wickersham it was decided to file an injunction suit against the proposed increase in freight rates by the Western Traffic association.

Details of the proceedings were left by the president entirely in the hands of Attorney General Wickersham and department of justice officials.

Mr. Wickersham's conference with Mr. Taft was a hurried one, but it is understood the matter was gone into at length by the president at the cabinet meeting.

Mr. Taft regards this situation as general evidence of the importance of the provision in the pending administration railroad bill, to give the interstate commerce commission the right to suspend for sixty days any proposed increase in railroad rates.

In this time the commission, it is proposed, shall investigate whether or not the increase is justified. If this proposition were law injunction proceedings would not now be necessary.

Before the result of the White House conference was known Senator LaFollette introduced a resolution declaring that the attorney general should institute suit immediately to enjoin the advance of railroad rates.

He sought also to introduce a joint resolution declaring it to be unlawful to advance rates without the consent of the interstate commerce commission.

The first resolution went in as part of the routine business, but when Mr. LaFollette asked present consideration Mr. Elkins objected, as he wanted to get the railroad bill up. This prevented consideration.

Mr. Elkins also succeeded in preventing the introduction of the joint resolution. Mr. LaFollette said he would be heard from later.

$1000 REWARD FOR SUSPECT

Man Who Killed Alma Kellner May Be In New Orleans.

Louisville, Ky., June 1.—A dispatch from New Orleans says that a man said to be Joseph Wendling, the alleged murderer of Alma Kellner, has been seen there. Wendling is said to have relatives living in New Orleans, and the old French quarter is being searched for him.

A reward of $1000 has been offered by the relatives of the murdered school girl for the arrest and conviction of the murderer. Meanwhile the family has accepted the body as that of their daughter, but no arrangements for the funeral have yet been made.

The most persistent questioning of Mrs. Joseph Wendling, who is held at the police station here, charged with having been an accessory to the murder of the child whose mutilated body was found in a sub-cellar of St. John's parochial school, has failed to shake the woman's first declaration that she knew nothing about the crime. She adheres to her statement that a ring and pin, found in a trunk at her home, both of which have positively been identified as the property of the murdered girl, were given her by a boy, and further than her admission that she has seen nothing of her husband, who was janitor at the school, since his disappearance on Jan. 14, when he drew $100 from the bank, she will say nothing about him.

KILLS SELF TO AVOID ARREST

Athlete, Accused by Girl, Commits Suicide, After Eluding Constable.

Easton, Pa., June 1.—Dudley Wilhelm, aged twenty-two years, committed suicide here by shooting himself in the head with a revolver at his home. A constable had just served a warrant on him upon a charge preferred by a young woman of this city, and after telling the officer that he desired to change his clothes he went up to his room, took a revolver from a drawer and ended his life. He was a well known football player and was a popular young man.

Emma Goldman Has Narrow Escape.

GUTTERMAKING ON FARM.

Method For Producing Quality That May Bring Handsome Returns.

One who has had a long experience in carrying gives the following advice on guttermaking:

Be very careful about the washing and drying of the utensils, also about the stretching of the milk having a tin strainer made by the village tinner, over which put a clean soft cloth and wash with a tin ring, thus guarding against any small particles passing through into the milk, as is possible in the use of the ordinary wire strainers.

Give the milk a twenty-four to a thirty-six hour rising, skimming daily, and in hot weather it may be necessary to churn almost daily, for one of the main causes of bad butter and of the tiny white specks that are so aggravating is letting the cream become too sour.

Use a heated churn, and it generally takes about twenty-five minutes to bring the butter with the temperature of the cream at about 62 degrees.

After getting the butter well gathered, which may be done by gently turning the churn half over and back, lift the mass from the milk into the bowl and if warm set at once to cool. When cool salt it and work until it begins to get soft. Do not work it when soft. It makes the butter oily. Then set away to cool again. Do this about three times or until the butter is entirely free of milk, as the leaving of milk in the butter causes it to decompose very rapidly and makes rancid butter.

Do not wash the butter at all. It will stay more solid, have a better grain and keep four times as long as when water is used.

Eat Zeigler's bread.

Two strangers, one of the small tables in a dining car says the New York Sun. They found a common bond in the effort to secure something to eat, and by the time the coffee came they were great friends.

"I wonder if you will do me a favor," remarked the first one as he covered his check with a substantial bill. The other man seemed receptive, and he continued:

"Have you a lower berth for to night?" The man across the table nodded. "Well, I'm traveling with my mother, who is rather well along in life, and I'm anxious to make her comfortable. Would you be kind enough to give her your berth?"

"I should be delighted," responded the stranger.

They went back to the sleeper, where the accommodating man was presented to the other's mother, a white haired old lady with a charming face. The good Samaritan had exchanged his lower for the upper berth belonging to the old lady, and he was radiating with a sense of charitable kindness. It led him to remark affably to the other man:

"But where are you going to sleep?" "Oh, that's all right," was the answer; "that's my lower berth over there."

THE GRANGE

Grange

MATTERS IN MAINE.

State Master Favors Direct Primaries and Hits Caucuses.

In the 433 Granges in the Pine Tree State There Are 56,000 Members. One Grange Has a Membership of 1,000—Maine Favors Proportional Representation and Commends Its Master's Attitude in National Grange.

State Master Stetson opened the annual meeting of the Maine state grange with a notably important address in which he emphasized the need of "a fine, strong, abiding sense of personal responsibility of all members in order to achieve the highest success in grange work." He hit the present caucus methods of the political parties a hard rap. The people should take this matter of nominating candidates for public office into their own hands. "We may continue to ratify party nominations made by the bosses or we may control the elections," he said. "We will choose the latter alternative when we come to a realizing sense of our power and duty."

Resolutions were adopted on a variety of subjects, but those of wider importance were the following: Opposing the reduction of the import duty on sweet cream from 5 cents per pound to 5 cents per gallon; opposition was expressed to the repeal of the law which places a tax of 10 cents on oleo colored in imitation of butter; parcels post was favored; the price of 2½ cents for corn sold to corn packing companies was demanded for the 1910 crop; it was recommended that the master's address and officers' reports be discussed in the various subordinate granges, and the Maine grange favored proportional representation in the national grange.

We quote from a Bangor paper on this point, which says: "The report of the committee on the good of the Order embodied in that report the principle which the largest of the state granges have endeavored unsuccessfully to get before the national grange—representation according to size or number of members. The attitude of the national grange in this matter and the disposition to retain in the offices the men who have held them for so long and who are accused of running affairs of that organization according to their own liking regardless of the consequences to the Order in general have been severely criticised, and a resolution was passed at this session upholding the attitude of C. S. Stetson when a delegate to the national grange. The officers of the national grange have a paper which supports their position in all matters and receives a large amount of money from the national grange treasury each year. In the state of Michigan, also in the insurgent list, there is published a paper which does not support those officers and at the last day of the Maine state grange meeting this paper was adopted as the official organ of the Maine grange."

Secretary E. H. Libby reported for the year ended Oct. 1, 1909, that there were 433 granges in the state with 56,239 paid up members. Seventy-one granges have a membership of over 200 each, Hamilton grange leading with 1,000. The receipts of the secretary's office were $12,116.10, and the balance in the treasury is $5,511.91.

Notes on Horses.

Do you want a bulky horse? You can easily have one by giving him too heavy loads to draw.

The whip needed to make a horse increase his speed is in the manger. Good treatment of a horse will not soon be forgotten. Neither will poor treatment. The way a horse is handled makes the animal what he is.

Some men beat their horses for things for which they are not responsible.

After a hard day's work in the field the horses will enjoy a few moments to roll in the yard or about the straw pile. Your horses will scratch themselves more in five minutes by rolling than you can scratch them with a curry-comb in thirty minutes.

These figures constitute conclusive evidence of the immensity of traffic on the common roads. They do more—they give food for reflection as to where the cumulative losses in wear and tear of wagons, harness and teams, due to poor roads, will land us on the debit side. Nobody can ever approximately estimate this drain, but everybody must know it is in terms of millions.

The loss in dollars is serious enough for grave concern, but when the additional charge is made that bad roads are a menace to our institutions, our health and our educational development it constitutes an indictment of such gravity as to demand paramount consideration. Hundreds of millions of fertile acres remain unfilled while the insanitary and unwholesome city tenements are crowded with human beings whose standard of living must result in their mental, moral and physical decay.

It is not generally realized that our 2,155,000 miles of road constitute a great source of disease. By means of dust disease germs enter the human system. This is particularly true of

GOOD ROADS MEAN PROGRESS.

They Tend to Increase the Value of Property.

WILL LOWER COST OF LIVING

Farm Lands Will Be Settled More Rapidly, More Good Crops Will Be Raised, and the Consumer Will Receive Supplies at Smaller Prices.

A team of horses struggling along a mud road in the endeavor to draw half a load affords a striking object lesson of road improvement when compared to a team drawing a heavily loaded wagon at a comfortable trot along a stone surfaced road. This isolated example must be multiplied by 3,000,000 in order to obtain the cumulative effect of bad roads upon traffic in the United States. Not less than $250,000,000 is the useless tribute annually levied upon the people of the United States by its bad roads.

In 1896 a widespread inquiry made by the office of public roads indicated that the average cost of hauling on roads in the United States was 25 cents per ton per mile. In 1906 the bureau of statistics ascertained from its 2,800 county correspondents that the average cost per ton per mile was about 23 cents and the average length of haul 9.4 miles.

The high cost of hauling is not the only burden which the American people are carrying by reason of their bad roads. In traversing a region of country isolated from markets by reason of bad roads one is struck by the wastes of untilled land and by the lack of variety in the products. This is a condition more frequently due to lack of adequate transportation facilities than to lack of industry and intelligence of the inhabitants.

The point may be illustrated by assuming a series of concentric circles to be drawn about a market town or railroad station, constituting zones of production in all of which the roads are uniformly bad. Within the first zone all products can be delivered to market at a profit. Within the second zone certain products must be eliminated because of the length of haul. Milk, small fruits and certain kinds of vegetables requiring quick delivery and careful transportation might be cited as examples.

In the third zone still other products must be eliminated because of the prohibitive cost of hauling. The fourth zone will include only those products which can be held until the roads are passable and then hauled long distances and sold at a profit. Beyond this zone the land must be left unproductive or utilized for grazing and lumber.

Every improvement in the roads leading from this market widens these zones, makes unproductive land productive and enables the farmer to exercise a wider discretion in determining the character of his crops. The prosperity of the individual farmer becomes far greater, the traffic of the railroad increases, the consumer receives better supplies at lower prices, and thus the beneficial effects continue in an ever widening circle.

While it is impossible to assign an arbitrary percentage or amount to represent the increase in land values by reason of road improvement, it is generally believed that the average increase per acre within the zone of influence of an improved road would be from $2 to $9 per acre. As there are about $50,000,000 acres of farm lands improved and unimproved in the United States the possibilities of aggregate increase in value are enormous.

These figures constitute conclusive evidence of the immensity of traffic on the common roads. They do more—they give food for reflection as to where the cumulative losses in wear and tear of wagons, harness and teams, due to poor roads, will land us on the debit side. Nobody can ever approximately estimate this drain, but everybody must know it is in terms of millions.

The loss in dollars is serious enough for grave concern, but when the additional charge is made that bad roads are a menace to our institutions, our health and our educational development it constitutes an indictment of such gravity as to demand paramount consideration. Hundreds of millions of fertile acres remain unfilled while the insanitary and unwholesome city tenements are crowded with human beings whose standard of living must result in their mental, moral and physical decay.

It is not generally realized that our 2,155,000 miles of road constitute a great source of disease. By means of dust disease germs enter the human system. This is particularly true of tuberculosis germs. Roads of the future in great centers of population will be practically dustless, and the bituminous and other binders which will be used in the construction of such roads will not only minimize the danger of disease by reducing the dust nuisance, but they are in a measure possessed of antiseptic properties.

There is no phase of life in the country, social or economic, which is not affected by good roads. There is a direct relation between improved highways and the value of land, the attendance of children at school, the health of the community and everything else that tends to make life in the country efficient. And this, in turn, affects the people in the cities who live on the country products. It is a task—the maintenance of good roads—which affects every person in the country, no matter where he lives or what his profession.

Road building is an art based upon a science. In this age of specialists it almost surpasses belief that the American people, so practical in all other lines of endeavor, should permit their golden millions to be frittered away by men who for the most part know little or nothing about either the science or the art of road building. There are today more than 1,000 petty road officials in the United States, each and all receiving compensation.

Very few of these men devote more than a fraction of their time to road work, because their interests lie elsewhere and their compensation is too small to enable them to devote their entire time to the work. It is not surprising that a century and a quarter of this kind of supervision has resulted in the present chaotic condition of our public roads. The reforms that should take place will provide a comparatively small body of trained, competent road builders devoting their entire time to continuous road work.

Not only must the roads be built by trained men, but they must be kept in repair.

The road building era has already begun. Already great strides have been made in recent years toward bringing about these needed reforms in the road laws and administration, in providing more adequate revenues and in devising methods of construction and maintenance adapted to the requirements of modern traffic.—Logan W. ## FATTENING THE PIGS.

Youngsters Will Put on Flesh More Economically Than Old Ones.

After it is determined what pigs are to be fed for market, fattening should be started immediately. Many experiments have proved that young animals fatten more economically than the old ones, and any delay in finishing is accompanied with a loss.

In some instances, but they are rare, it may pay to keep a pig over winter as a "store" hog, but as a general thing he loses the flesh he accumulated while sucking his dam, and this can only be replaced at increased expense. Corn will now come into the ration and should be supplemented by all the variety of feed at the feeder's command to keep the appetite on edge and the digestive organs in first class condition. This variety should consist of succulent feeds, mill feeds and dairy byproducts and, according to some breeding authorities, pasture.

When whey, buttermilk and skim-milk are at hand they can be used to very good advantage with the ration, starting with a proportion of about two pounds of milk to one of grain at incoming time and reducing the quantity of milk until the pig is finished on grain alone. Best results will be realized from dairy byproducts while pigs are young.

The fattening pigs should gain from one pound to one and a half pounds daily and weigh in the neighborhood of 250 or 300 pounds when they are nine or ten months old. A well bred pig finished at a weight of 250 pounds will bring the market requirements and bring its owner a very satisfactory price.

How to Feed the Pony.

A small pony, especially if a Shetland, does not usually require much grain. A quart of corn in the morning and a quart of oats at noon and at night should be sufficient. Give it what hay it wants and, if the weather is suitable and there is good pasture, turn it out to grass whenever there is a chance.

HIS ASSISTANT

A Story of a Professor
And a Girl Graduate

By BERTHA D. ALSOP

Copyright, 1910, by American Press Association.

Professor Erskine was a very old young man. He was thirty-two and looked ten or fifteen years older. "What can you expect," said one of the young women students, referring to his antique appearance, "of a man whose sole diet is Greek roots?" Luella Greenfield led her class from start to finish and took every prize the competed for. She was a great favorite with Professor Erskine, who the day after her graduation said to her:

"Your career must not be that of women who are tied down to the care of children. Choose rather to devote yourself to intellectual pursuits. I can give you a fine opportunity for a beginning. I am writing a history of the barbarian kings who changed the influence of Rome in European civilization during the fourth and fifth centuries. I need an assistant to aid me in my researches. Will you join me?" "And give up all thoughts of a home life with dear little children to comfort me when I am old?"

"You will be interested in your work, a far nobler duty than mending children's clothes and washing their dirty faces." Luella, whether or no she was convinced, was at last induced to accept the professor's invitation. She dived into books on the Goths, while the professor bored into the past of the Huns. He found her extremely useful. Indeed, he soon learned that it would have been next to impossible to get on without her. She worked so hard that at the end of a few months she needed a rest and went away from him. Professor Erskine was not surprised that he found his work very difficult without her, but he was surprised that during her absence he had no heart in his work. Genseric, Attila, all the barbarian kings, ceased suddenly to interest him. The libraries in which he delved had become musty. In his study there were Luella's chair and desk, but without Luella the room was unbearable. Instead of working he went out and walked back and forth on the campus.

"There's old Erskine," said a co-ed on her way to lecture, "stalking back and forth as if moonstruck. He's been doing that ever since Luella Greenfield went away. I wonder if he's dreaming of the barbarian kings or of her."

"He persuaded her," said another, "to devote her life to worthy books. He certainly wouldn't permit himself to think about her except as a means to dig up the past of the people he writes about."

One day a letter came to the professor from his assistant stating that he must get some one to take her place, in order to fit herself physically for the plans he had laid down for her in an intellectual field she needed a year out of door life.

The professor's heart felt like a hammer before a sudden storm. The Goths, the Visigoths, the Huns, were forgotten in the depth of his despair at being condemned to work without Luella. As to having any one else sitting at her desk, the thought was unbearable.

The next morning the college bulletin announced that Professor Erskine, having been suddenly called away, would not lecture that day. A male student, reading the notice, remarked: "Good! I can practice pitching all day. I'll bet he's got on to a headless Jupiter and gone to buy it for the museum." A girl student followed and, with her sex's keener intuition, said: "H'm! Gone after Luella Greenfield. I knew she'd get him."

"I have come," said the professor to his assistant, "to learn if it is absolutely essential that you should give up your work for so long a period."

"So my physician advises me—that is, if I am to do sedentary work. And you know how interested I am in following an intellectual life. It was you who directed me."

"H'm! Unfortunate—very unfortunate for me. It will be impossible for me to continue my present work without your assistance."

"There's Miss Pringle who was graduated last June. She's very bright. She would love the work."

"I shall give it up."

"Oh, professor, don't talk that way. It will give you a great reputation."

"I can't go on with it."

"Not with an able assistant?"

"No."

"Why not?"

"Unless I see you at your accustomed place I have no heart in it, and literary work done without heart is worthless."

Luella turned away, but said nothing. "Perhaps," the professor went on, "if I knew when I went home at night that you would be there—I mean as my wife—it might make a difference."

There was a prolonged silence, at the end of which Luella said: "That would mean an abandonment of an intellectual career for me."

The professor hung his head like a boy who had been caught robbing the sugar bowl.

"You remember what you said to me a few months ago as to the preference for an intellectual life?"

He remembered very well that it was better than "mending children's clothes and washing their dirty faces," but still he said nothing.

Suddenly she threw her arms about his neck.
